

Monica Karavanic has been the Director of Residential Services for The Arc of Southside for the last 10 years. She has a Bachelor's Degree in Counseling and Rehabilitation from Marshall University. Her career began serving children with emotional disabilities, in Pennsylvania; then transitioned to serving adults with severe mental illness, and now to her current position, in Virginia. While she has supported a wide range of ages and abilities, her career has always had a central focus of providing home and community based services. She is devoted to the belief that all people despite disability, should be supported to live in their community.
