

Ken Labowitz has practiced law in Alexandria, Virginia since 1978 and is a partner at the law firm of Dingman, Labowitz, Heishman, P.C. Since 2003 his practiced has focused entirely on handling fiduciary matters, including guardianships. He and his law partners currently act as guardian for more than 100 people in Fairfax and Alexandria. Mr. Labowitz filed the original guardianship petition in the case of Edith Hill. He eventually represented the last guardian for Ms. Hill, an attorney from Arlington, who was appointed as a successor guardian to two of Ms. Hill's daughters. Mr. Labowitz was a participant in the final hearing in Ms. Hill's case during which a final resolution was agreed to by Ms. Hill's daughters as to her where she would live, with financial support provided by the noted entertainer, Cher.
